papers last night but the latest dates from New York only bring up to May 2nd. They contain the usual amount of bluster and braggadocio, but it is evident that the war feeling is cooling down in the North, owing we suppose to the fact that the gutters and sewers have been nearly emptied. One barefoot regiment has been raised in New York and a gentleman who saw them says they looked more like they were looking for something to eat than somebody to fight. The Tribune, World, Enquirer and other Lincoln papers say they are coming down to whip us. We have only to say "if you're coming why don't yer come along." The South is ready and can on the 28th reported 25,000 troops at the fedthrash the whole 18,000,000, and if they attempt to "open up a highway to New Orleans" we'll do it. Do you hear, Horace?

cation I have the signs; but now with me all hope is gid I feel that any communication I have must be made at once. Old Bennett rages at the "rebels" and dethe Lincoln programme thus:

"General Scott, who in October last warned the administration of the impending sezure of our South-ern forts, arsenals, &c., by secession conspirators, is now. we are assured, minutely informed of their ical sentime sympathics, as they are well present plans and movements, and is making his arknown to w raugements on a grand scale to crush them. Let the rebels succumb or disperse, or before they are apprised of their danger they will be encircled by our loyal armies, as in the coils of a boa constructor. Our administration will probably, before the end of May, have 150,000 fighting men in the field, and the aggregate by the Fourth of July may reach the formidable figure of 250,000, exclusive of the blockading force of the Southern senboard. The land and mland water operations of these 250,000 men will ex tend from Maryland to Missouri, and from Missouri down the Mississippi to the Gulf of Mexico; and no State will be allowed to hold the equivocal and treacherous position of that sort of neutrality which, while it recognizes the Union, co-operates with its

The government, of course, for obvious reasons, does not disclose its military plans to the world; bu rom the movements afoot, from Havre de Grace northwestwardly to the Mississippi river, and from various other items of information from intelligent sources, we think the general campaign we have in-dicated may be safely predicted. We are not less confident of an immediate plan of operations in re-terence to Maryland and Virginia which will make short and decisive work with the reckless rebels of those unfortunate States. Within the next ten days there will be, we expect, a corps d'armee of fifty thousand loyal men in occupation of Washington, Baltimore, Annapolis, and the roads, bays and rivers communicating with them from the North and the South. It will be the first duty of this army to lift Maryland out of the slough of rebellion, in answer to her cries for mercy.

Maryland, in hesitating to plunge into the gulf of rebellion, must be saved. But she must stand by the Union. The good cause admits of no half way allegiance between loyalty and treason. We con sider the campaign now transferred to Virginia; and she must fall back from her attitude of rebellion or

Our word for it if ever old Scott heads an army to invade Virginia he will never leave the field alive. The Southern troops will have his head if it cost 50,000 lives. Further, under "The character of the Campaign," old Bennett consoles us in this wise: "We have in the Northern cities at least three hundred thousand of the most reckless, desperate men on the face of the earth.
